Commission de la sécurité publique

Police officers and citizens, together for the Montréal community

During the past few years, the Service de police de la Ville de Montréal (SPVM) has developed training programs and implemented various measures aimed at promoting a closer relationship between police officers and citizens. Since his appointment, the new director of the SPVM, Mr. Marc Parent, has instated practices that support the initiatives and commitment-driven behaviour among Montréal police officers. This context of positive change within the SPVM prompts the public security committee to initiate a public consultation on the topic of the relationship between police officers and citizens.

The committee thus extends the invitation to citizens and representatives of organizations to share their perspectives on improving police interventions and to formulate their comments during either one of the following meetings:
