

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC MEETING

*Crossing the street:
How to improve pedestrian safety and comfort?*

The standing committee on transportation and public works will consult the city's population concerning the issue of street crossing. At its first public meeting held October 17, 2012, the Direction des transports de la Ville de Montréal had presented its approach for the analysis of the population's needs and expectations as well as potential actions aiming to review pedestrian crossings. Following an analysis of collisions involving pedestrians, an opinion poll concerning pedestrian safety, a review of best practices and discussions with key stakeholders, the Direction will present a draft action plan aiming to increase pedestrian safety and comfort.

The standing committee thus extends its invitation to citizens and representatives of organizations to participate in the following public consultations:
