Youth and the sense of safety in public places
Gaps between perceptions and reality: Findings and implications

In cooperation with the Conseil jeunesse de Montréal, the public security committee invites young people aged 12 to 30 to join in public consultations bearing on the sense of safety. Do young people feel safe in public places? Do they have a difficult time feeling safe in a crowd? What makes a place safe? Three public meetings have been planned in March to discuss those issues. The Conseil jeunesse and the Commission de la sécurité publique are keen on hearing your suggestions and recommendations.
